Red Rock shares boosted by continued improvements at El Limon gold mine

16th May 2011, 10:41 am by Jamie Ashcroft

The company optioned into the producing El Limon mine back in June 2010 and it assumed operational control of the project in February 2011

Red Rock Resources (LON:RRR) shares gained over 12 percent this morning as investors welcomed the continued improvement of the El Limon gold mining operation.

The company optioned into the producing El Limon mine back in June 2010 through a deal with local firm Mineras Four Points. Red Rock subsequently assumed operational control of the project in February 2011 and it acquired a 51 percent stake in its partner in March 2011.

Red Rock gave a brief update on the mine operation late on Friday.

It said that the production of gold ore has continued on an upward trend and in the first ten days of May production averaged 40.2 tons each day. Furthermore this had increased to 50.7 tons (at 9.37 grams per tonne) by the end of the week.

In the first week of May 707.33 grams (nearly 25 ounces) of gold and 581 grams (about 20 ounces) of silver were sold from El Limon.

By 10:30 this morning Red Rock shares were up 0.87 pence, about 12 percent, trading at 8.07 pence each.
